THE DECLARATION OF WORLD PEACE.

As citizens of the world, we hold to be self-evident the right to live in a world of peace. To manifest this right, I now declare that we can and will create world peace. To insure this right, I also declare that I will make peace in all areas of my personal life. By making these declarations we signers establish, for all people, now and forever, peace on earth.

PEACELETTER

Dear Friend,

Declarations have created new countries, freed slaves and changed the entire course of history. Print the declaration and sign it. You will be an official signer to the first Declaration of World Peace.

World Peace often seems like an impossible dream. One of the first steps to creating world peace is finding a way to initiate peace in our own lives. When this happens you can begin to feel your viewpoint change from "peace is impossible" to "peace is possible" and finally to "peace is inevitable". To create this shift Peaceletter asks you to do three things:

- 1. Sign the Declaration of World Peace, post it in a visible place and read it every day.
- 2. Work to make peace in your own life.
- 3. Share the Declaration of World Peace everywhere you can.

In the moment of signing the Declaration, you make a remarkable contribution to world peace. As you make the Declaration of World Peace a part of your daily life, your commitment to peace grows steadily. In this way peace spreads from individual to family to neighbor to community. Making your own life peaceful now is the most tangible contribution you can make to world peace. World peace means nothing if we continue our individual conflicts with family, friends and neighbors. This discord creates an atmosphere in which conflicts in and among nations seem reasonable, even inevitable. Declare World Peace and reverse the process. Make peace inevitable.

The Declaration adds new dimensions to whatever you are already doing to bring world peace. Whether you pray, involve yourself in politics, or simply hope to see peace in your lifetime, signing and implementing the Declaration for World Peace will create new opportunities for peace you had not expected. And it will lend clarity, focus and greater understanding to what you are already doing.

Won't you join us in this exciting venture and sign the Declaration for World Peace today?
